

108 THE YOUNG MORALIST.

and the gentle gales of peace will safely waft thy tottering bark to the heaven of true felcity.

MORAL.

Young People should value the admonitions of mature experience, as the dictates of wisdom and understanding; and remember the burden of an old song, which ends thus :

*Young man beware, be wise, take care,
The blind eat many a fly.*

HIS

H I S T O R Y
O F
A B R A O U L F

IN Visapour, the capital city of the dom of Decoran, dwelt Abraou-ler by trade : in his art he had equals : the bracelets that sparkled arms of the sultanas of Visapour were by him : and so exquisite was his work-ship, that it contributed to set off the
of the most beautiful of the creation.

Abraoulf finding wealth flow in from every quarter, formed the most prospects of a happy life ; and being that man is not capable of enjoying

L